DAY OF MANY WEDDINGS

THE MONTH OF JUNE KEEPING UP ITS WELL-KNOWN RECORD.

The Browning-Graves Nuptials Celebrated-Other Ceremonies-Personal Notes.

One of the prettiest home weddings of the season was that of Miss Bessie Browning, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Browning, and Mr. Michael Edward Graves, at the home of the bride's parents, on North Alabama street, yesterday. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Nelle Taylor, and Mr. Benjamin Traub was best man. Two little ribbon bearers, Spencer Raymond, in evening dress, and Miss Edith Pierce, in a dainty white gown, formed an aisle for the bridal party from the foot of the staircase to the altar of palms, before which the bridal party stood. Mr. Morton Traub and Mr. John Craig acted as ushers and preceded the bridal party. The bride entered on the arm of her father, as the bridal march from "Lohengrin" was played. Rev. Allen B. Philputt, of the Central Christian Church, pronounced the ceremony. The bridal gown was of white satin. The skirt had a court train and was trimmed with four pointed flounces of accordion-plaited satin, edged with a ruching of liberty satin. The bodice was low, with a bolero of the satin, edged with the ruching and lace. The veil was draped with orange blossoms and fastened to the hair with a diamond brooch. The bouquet was white roses. The bridesmaid's gown was of blue silk organdy, made with low corsage and no sleeves. She carried pink roses. During the ceremony a harpist played

"Because I Love You So." Following the ceremony a reception was given. Mr. and Mrs. Browning were assisted by Mr. T. Smith Graves, father of the bridegroom. Punch was served in the second parlor by Elizabeth Noel and Anna dresses of white. Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. Y. Graves and Miss Anna Graves, of Buffalo, N. Mr. and Mrs. A. M. FROM TIEN-TSIN TO PEKING.

Danger and Inconvenience in Lauding Sailors at Taku Forts.

New York Post. A naval officer who has just returned from the Asiatic station recently made two journeys to Peking by way of Tien-Tsin and the railroad, which the Boxers have in part destroyed, and along which the foreign marines and sailors are now advancing to the Chinese capital. He describes the approach to the Chinese capital to a reporter as extremely uncomfortable, even at the best of times. Not only is the journey by rail very tedious, but the preiminaries to landing from a ship of war are inconvenient and even dangerous.
"The Taku forts," he said, "so frequently referred to in current dispatches are adobe structures on the coast at the mouth of the Peiho. Either from lack of enterprise or of studied purpose, the Chinese permit a dangerous bar to exist off the mouth of the Peiho in front of the forts. This bar and the shallows about it extend so far out that men-of-war are forced to lie fifteen miles off shore, entirely out of When a naval officer has occasion visit Peking, he must drop from his ship into a little launch, and in this light craft make the journey across the bar and to the oint where he is to take the train for Tien-Tsin. The journey by rail thence is about twenty miles. The hour of departure is always uncertain, and the train is extremely slow. The road runs through a densely peopled region in which are few Tien-Tsin itself is a considerable Chinese town on the Peiho. It has a small foreign colony, but is likely, in view of disturbances at Peking and elsewhere in the interior, to have this colony considerably enlarged by refugees. "The journey from Tien-Tsin to Peking s made at better speed than the journey from the coast to Tien-Tsin; besides for $5 one may have the privilege of riding in an imperial postal car, which has some of the comforts of the American parlor-car. It is a little misleading, however, to speak of the journey to Peking by rail, for the nearest station is about five miles from the city. The abomination of modern civilization may not come nearer the sacred city. The journey from the station to Peking is made over one of the worst roads on earth, and in a peculiarly uncomfortable vehicle-the Chinese country cart. "Peking itself is a city of a million inhabitants, standing in a desert, without sewers and without a public water supply. The filth of the place, which is almost unbelievable, offends the nostrils at every turn. The streets are ill paved, and getting about the city is uncomfortable and ever dangerous. Peking is walled with a most has outgrown its bounds, and from the top stretching wide and densely crowded. "It is hardly accurate to say that Peking has a foreign quarter in the sense in which that phrase is understood in the treaty bers of the legations, the missionaries and their households. Each foreign household in a 'compound' of its own. These compounds are the only clean places in the city. The compound of the British legation is large and attractive. The same is true of the plot occupied by the Russian legation. Our own legation occupies a neat but far too small compound, near the city social life of their own, and the represenertainments. The social life of the legations, however, goes on in the presence a vast hostile population, and is rendered a little uncomfortable at times by reason of national jealous fears and suspicions. The presence of a large Russian force at Port traveling and with her parents at the Chi- Arthur, just across the Gulf of Pechili from the Taku forts, does not tend to lessen the uneasiness of life at the legations "Peking has a hot and rather unhealthy summer climate. The city is as near as but considerably further inland. of the coast towns are also unhealthy, but Che-Foo, on a bluff facing the sea, about 200 miles southeast of the Taku forts, has an excellent climate, and is a favorite place of summer residents with foreigners in that part of China."

Rainy Daisies.

New York Press. Is any short skirt a rainy daisy or is there a particular style of abbreviation that entitles a woman's dress to that name? Before we heard of rainy daisies we had bicycle skirts, and latterly we have become used to the golf skirt. On Thursday I crossed the East river by way of the Thircrowded with women of youth and beauty, age and wrinkles. They presented some startling revelations-not of ankles, but of common sense that is uncommon. Nearly all wore short skirts about boot-top height and one or two were jugging golf sticks. The others may belong to the rainy dalsy short because the women who live down on Long island are sensible creatures, not appeared for the company at the hearing. tonio. DOCKET

JUDGE ALFORD DISPOSED OF TWEN-TY-FIVE CASES.

Several Cases Before Him During th Day-In Judge Carter's Court-High Court Decisions.

Judge Alford, of the Criminal Court, yesterday started in on the annual cleaning up of his court docket so as to have as few cases as possible to carry over on the new docket that will be made up July 1. He disposed of twenty-five old cases, and there are about twenty-five more which will be wiped off the docket this week. Most of the cases were dismissed, the prosecuting witnesses having moved away, died or the defendants having been discharged or are now under sentence for other offenses. When Judge Alford went on the bench he found cases fourteen years old on the and Mrs. Trimble left on an Eastern docket, and it was a great deal of trouble honeymoon trip and will be at home at to look them up. After several months' to look them up. After several months' work the docket was finally cleaned, and he has kept it so ever since.

The cases dismissed yesterday were ing a deadly weapon, appeal from Police Court; Joseph Hays, nuisance, appeal from justice of the peace; William H. Boctin, assault and battery, from Police Court; the effect of discrediting the witness. Oliver Hovey, embezzlement and forgery; Kinsley, disturbing religious meeting; on entering a house to commit felony, in the Reform School; Wellen Campbell, incorrigibie; Louis Traugott, assault and batassault and battery; Walker Smith, uttering forged check; Arnold F. Dold, unlawful use of label; Jacob Faugott, violating the Nicholson law: William Craig, James Torrence and Fred Burnett, petit larceny, two tion for rehearing overrules indictments; Harry Haney, alias Henry Carroll, and James Fallon, alias Mike Welsh, petit larceny and receiving stolen goods, two indictments; Rose Meriman, failure to keep child in school, from justice

John Dickson, twelve years old, who cut and stabbed Alfred Weber, 1011 Villa avenue, May 31, pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill, but Judge Alford suspended sentence on the promise of good behavior.

Charles Burgoyne, Otto Burgoyne and Otto Shopp were before Judge Alford, charged with violating the liquor law. Shopp entered a plea of guilty and was fined $5 and costs and the others were re-William Richards, charged with stealing

THE TEACHER SUSTAINED.

Force Given to a Vaccination Order-High Court Cases.

The Supreme Court yesterday overruled the petition for rehearing in the case Frank D. Blue vs. Fannie M. Beach and in her school, when he had not complied with an order of the School Board and Board of Health that all pupils attending school should be vaccinated. The case originated during the smallpox scare in the fall of 1893 and was afterward prosecuted as a test case. The Circuit Court rendered a judgment upholding the action of the teacher and the Supreme Court affirmed The judgment commanding the Shelby County Council to make an appropriation of money to pay for schoolbooks and clothing that will probably be needed during the next year to supply poor children of that county with the means of attending school, as provided in the compulsory education law, was reversed by the Su-

Another of the judgments quashing lictments against the members of the county was affirmed by the Appellate Court. The indictment charged the ance of $500 to the county auditor for extra services as clerk of the Board of Commissioners in gravel road proceedings. The judgment convicting Elias Hanes of assault on a little girl at Williamsport with criminal intent was affirmed yesterday by the Supreme Court. The court said that while all the evidence seemed to show that all the defendant did was with the child's consent, that in a child of tender years it made no difference and the man

TWO CASES AT ONCE. An Attempt Made to Prove that a Name Was Forged.

Judge Carter heard two cases at the same time yesterday. One was that the Consolidated Coal and Lime Company against Thomas G. Richardson, a former street improvement contractor. August M. Kuhn and Joseph Fischer, his bondsmen; and the other was that Samuel Hollensbe against Richardson and Frank Dearinger and Joseph Fischer. bondsmen in another case. Last fall Dayidson went away from the city with a woman, leaving material bought of the plaintiffs unpaid for and has not been heard from since. Suit was brought to recover the money from the bondsmen. Fischer asserted that he did not sign the bond, saying he could not write English and that his name was misspelled. His name is spelled with a "c" between the "s" and "h," while in one of the bonds the name was spelled "Fisher." This evidence was an attempt to show that a forgery had been committed, but Frank E Gavin, attorney for the plaintiff, introduced testimony to show that he had signed his name to various papers. Judge Carter took the case under advisement.

Petition for Restraining Order.

James E. Berry brought suit against Royal C. Hammer vesterday to have a restraining order issued to prevent him from ing me names. And that's why I say man | disposing of property Berry claims is security on some notes he holds against Hammer. He alleges that Hammer borrowed $1,500 of him and March 21, 1898, filed in the recorder's office what purported to be a deed for the property to secure the notes. He says Hammer now claims possession of the property and he believes that he will dispose of it unless restrained. He also on note. Superior Court, Room I. asks that the security be considered the same as a mortgage.

Brooklyn Eagle. Those who are saying that Brigadier General Joseph Wheeler is "seventy years old" cannot know what they are talking about. He was born Sept. 10, 1836, and he will not be sixty-four years old until next Sept. 10. The law does not permit a man to be appointed in the regular army after he is sixty-four, but allows him to be appointed any time before that. General Wheeler will retire next Sept. 10 with the rank of a brigadier general. It ought to be impossible for a man to have access as a writer to any newspaper who does not know the law in its application to age in the matter of army appointments.
